PRINCIPAL'S POST

By: Cecilia Methvin

Our 3rd grade Chorale Concert last Friday was such a beautiful event! Thank you to all of our faculty who made the event a success, and to our 3rd graders for giving us such a faith-filled performance. This Friday, we celebrate St. Patrick's Day as well as the feast of St. Joseph (March 19th) with the St. Joseph Altar in the school gym. All are invited to view the altar and attend the blessing at 9:15 am after the 8:00 am school Mass in the church. Students may wear green, red, white, or any combination of those colors to school on Friday.

On Friday night, our Student Council is hosting a middle school "Neon Night" dance in the SHS gym. This is the first school sponsored dance we have held in over 15 years and everyone is so excited! Mrs. Broussard and I are so proud of our student leadership and how they have come together to plan this event. We know a good time will be had by all!

As we continue our Lenten journey, please consider joining us this Friday for the Stations of the Cross at 2:00 pm in the church.

Jesus, help me to see this holy season of Lent as a time of spiritual renewal, rather than a time of deprivation. Motivate me to reach a new level of experiencing your grace.

How much physical activity do children need?

The amount of physical activity children need depends on their age. Children ages 3 through 5 years need to be active throughout the day. Children and adolescents ages 6 through 17 need to be active for 60 minutes every day. This may sound like a lot, but do not worry! Children may already be meeting the recommended physical activity levels. School based physical activity can help children meet the recommended 60 minutes of daily physical activity. You can also see ways to encourage children to participate in activities that are age-appropriate, enjoyable, and offer variety.

Recommendations for Children Ages 3 Through 5 Years

- Be physically active throughout the day for growth and development.
- Adult caregivers should encourage children to be active when they play.

Recommendations for Children and Adolescents Ages 6 Through 17 Years

60 minutes or more of moderate-to-vigorous intensity physical activity each day.

- Aerobic activity: Most of the daily 60 minutes should include activities like walking, running, or anything that makes their hearts beat faster. At least 3 days a week should include vigorous-intensity activities.
- Muscle-strengthening: Includes activities like climbing or doing push-ups, at least 3 days per week.
- Bone-strengthening: Includes activities such as jumping or running, at least 3 days per week.

Encourage children to do any activity they enjoy if the activities are safe and appropriate for your child's age and skill level.

What do you mean by age-appropriate activities?

Some physical activity is better-suited for children than adolescents. For example, younger children usually strengthen their muscles when they do gymnastics, play on a jungle gym, or climb trees. Children do not usually need formal muscle-strengthening programs, such as lifting weights. As children grow older and become adolescents, they may start structured weight lifting programs. They may do these types of programs along with their sports team practices.

How do I know if my child's aerobic activity is moderate- or vigorous-intensity?

On a scale of 0 to 10, where sitting is a 0 and the highest level of activity is a 10, moderate-intensity activity is a 5 or 6. When children do moderate-intensity activity, their heart beats faster, and they breathe much harder than when they are at rest or sitting. Vigorous-intensity activity is a level 7 or 8. When children do vigorous-intensity activity, their heart beats much faster than normal, and they breathe much harder than normal.

The talk test is a simple way to measure relative intensity. In general, if children are doing moderate-intensity physical activity, they can talk but not sing during the activity. If children are doing vigorous-intensity physical activity, they will not be able to say more than a few words without pausing for a breath.

Many of these activities fall under 2 or 3 different categories. Children can do moderate- or vigorous-intensity aerobic physical activity on all days of the week. Children can do muscle- and bone-strengthening activity at least 3 days each week. Also, some activities, such as bicycling or basketball, can be done either at moderate- or vigorous-intensity, depending on your child's level of effort.

Another example is when children walk to school with friends each morning, they're probably doing moderate-intensity aerobic activity. But when children run, or chase others while playing tag during recess, they are probably doing vigorous-intensity activity.
